ALABAMA'S GREEN INDUSTRY PROVIDES ECONOMIC punch

Alabama's green industry, which includes nursery, greenhouse, turfgrass, sod, lawn, and landscaping operations as well as retail businesses that sell plant materials and related products, has grown significantly since the first economic study conducted in 2003. The 2007 study—a joint effort by Auburn University, the Alabama Nursery and Landscape Association, the Alabama Turfgrass Association, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture—shows that Alabama's green industry contributes almost $2.9 billion annually to Alabama's economy—an increase of 51.7 percent since 2003—and provides jobs for more than 43,000 Alabamians—an increase of 41.5 percent. Without a doubt, Alabama's green industry is growing.

Established in 1951, the Alabama Nursery and Landscape Association (ALNLA) is a non-profit professional association for those involved in, and allied with, the ornamental horticulture industry.

The Alabama Turfgrass Association (ATA), a non-profit organization established in 1961, unites supervising turfgrass management personnel in Alabama and Northwest Florida.

Acknowledgements

The green industry would like to recognize Deacue Fields, associate professor and Extension specialist, for his diligent work on this second economic impact study of Alabama's green industry. We would like to thank the multiple individuals, professional organizations, and businesses who contributed encouragement and grant awards to make the study possible. Finally many thanks to the hundreds of Alabama industry professionals who participated in this study. We also commend all of the individuals whose hard work in nurseries, in greenhouses, on sod farms, in landscaping services, and in retail centers makes these numbers a reality.
